Modern slavery statement

At Grant Thornton UK LLP, our strong emphasis upon purpose and social responsibility ensures we speak out on issues impacting our clients, people and industry. Our policy is to assess and address anti-modern slavery laws in our own business. Equally, we expect organisations we work with to adopt and enforce policies to comply with legislation. Collaboration between our people, suppliers and clients is vital for achieving this aim.

What is modern slavery?

Modern slavery is an international crime affecting over 40 million people worldwide. This growing global issue transcends age, gender and ethnicities. It includes victims trafficked from overseas and vulnerable people in the UK who are forced illegally to work against their will across many different sectors such as agriculture, hospitality, construction, retail and manufacturing.

The Modern Slavery Act 2015 (the Act) requires commercial organisations supplying goods or services with a turnover of above £36 million to prepare and publish an annual ‘Slavery and Human Trafficking Statement’. The Statement must set out the steps an organisation has taken, if any, during its financial year to ensure that slavery or human trafficking is not taking place in its supply chain.

Our policy

Our policy is to assess and address the risks of violations of anti-human trafficking and anti-modern slavery laws. We adopt procedures that contribute to ensuring modern slavery does not occur in our business or supply chains. We also expect organisations we transact with to adopt and enforce policies to comply with legislation.

We are signatories of the UN Global Compact, supporting principles with respect to human rights, labour, environment and anti-corruption.

We support our people and clients to address issues arising from modern slavery. Collaboration is one of our CLEARR values. Together with Leadership, Excellence, Agility, Responsibility and Respect, our values underpin our culture and how we do business. We ensure:

- our values, which are embedded throughout our business, set the parameters for how we expect our people to behave with colleagues, clients and the world at large
- we seek to treat everyone fairly and consistently, creating a workplace and business environment that is open, transparent and trusted
- our policies and procedures relating to the Act are aligned with our culture and values.
Transparency in our supply chains

We recognise our firm is exposed to greater risk when dealing with its suppliers, particularly those who have operations/suppliers in other territories. The following measures are in place to review and manage the risk:

• we map suppliers to whom we pay £100,000 and above (80% of spend), according to location, size and industry, to identify potential risk areas.

• a Third Party Code of Contact is in place, used for all new major suppliers of goods or in re-tendering, clearly stating the firm’s intention to step away (without penalty) if any occurrences of modern slavery are discovered and/or ignored.
  - This includes an expectation for our Third Parties to pay their employees the living wage.

• our commitment to collaborate closely with suppliers to help them understand and work towards their own compliance with the Act.

• a Know Your Third Party Financial Crime Due Diligence policy demonstrates our commitment in ensuring our suppliers are acting with integrity, and engagement with them will not expose us to risk.

• a Responsible Purchasing Policy is in place, which reflects our commitment and focus on suppliers’ ethical supply chain(s).

Supporting our people

Following the Act, we have increased our people’s awareness of this important issue by outlining specific actions our firm has taken. We also provide guidance to enable people to report any potential concerns within business or personal contexts. We have:

• developed and shared resources, including summary documents with an overview of the Act, and links to the modernslavery.co.uk website

• signposted our people to modernslavery.co.uk to provide them with useful information on how to recognise different types of slavery, how to spot the signs and details of their telephone helpline

• included in our Annual Declaration a requirement that everyone reads and acknowledges the firm’s modern slavery policy

• an internal whistleblowing hotline to enable anyone who has concerns (for example, how suppliers, clients, partners or employees behave) to raise these confidentially

• delivered a Modern Slavery workshop with Government Home Office and NGO experts to elevate internal awareness in recognising this crime, its impact and appropriate reporting channels.
Supporting our clients

We continuously review how to support clients. This includes collaborating with government agencies and other reputable organisations to deepen and share knowledge so that we collectively address this challenge. In addition, we are able to help our clients to:

• develop a modern slavery statement
• conduct supply chain mapping
• carry out supplier due diligence and routine spot checks
• develop any policies and practices clients may have in place.

Future performance indicators

Having recognised the risk when dealing with suppliers, Grant Thornton has invested in a senior resource to lead the Procurement team and enhance our procurement strategy. There will be a strong focus on third party management for 2022, supported by our Strategic Leadership Team.

The majority of the firm’s spend outside of the UK, in the above supplier set, is with Grant Thornton International member firms who all need to follow the Network’s code of conduct. A small number of international suppliers, which are not part of our Network, are US-based technology companies. We have deemed these to be low risk and will work with these suppliers in 2022 to understand what policies they have in place.
