

The MMI Foundation values the young people of South Africa and wants to see them empowered to succeed. They should have access to the training and opportunities that will help them secure their future.

Africa has the youngest and fastest growing youth population in the world, yet the continent's economies are not able to cash in on this youth dividend. In South Africa, the youth unemployment rate is a looming crisis that requires intervention from all spheres of our society.

The MMI Foundation is committed to playing its part and supporting South Africa's young people on their journey to sustainable employment and financial wellness.
